5 DAMAGE PAYMENTS

PERMANENT

PAIN

LOSS OF INCOME

MEDICAL BILLS

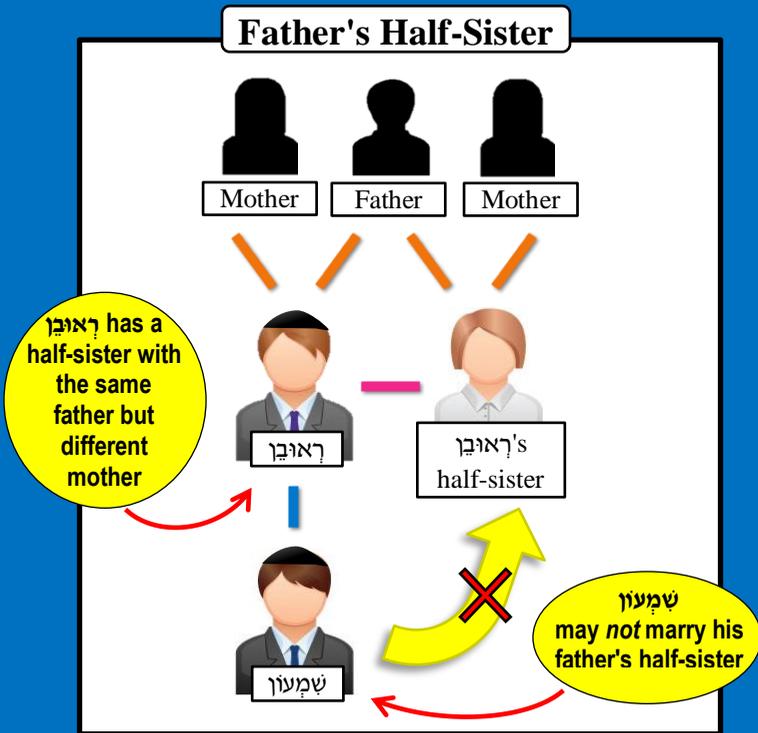

EMABARRASSMENT

Inside the Daf

If someone injures a person, he must pay the victim for five types of losses. He must pay the victim for any permanent damage he caused. This payment is the amount of money the victim would have sold for on the slave market before the injury minus the amount he would have sold for after the injury. He must also pay the victim for the pain he suffered from the injury, his medical bills, his lost income from not being able to work from his injury. He must also pay the victim for any embarrassment he suffered from being injured.

רַבָּה says, if one accidentally falls off of a roof and onto his יבמה (his brother's widow waiting for ביום to be performed), he must pay for all of the damages...except for her embarrassment. One does not pay for a victim's embarrassment if he injured the victim accidentally.

Father's Half-Sister

The Torah says you may not marry your father's sister. A בְּרִיתָא teaches that this is true even for your father's half-sister, that is, a sister that has the same father as your father, but not the same mother (see diagram).

A בְּרִיתָא asks whether one may marry one's father's half-sister when they have the same mother but not the same father.

A מְדוּת Moment

It seemed like a funny idea...at the time. Who wouldn't have a good laugh at Josh pushing Aaron into the principal. Fortunately for Aaron, the principal knew what was up. He turned to Josh.

"I know you didn't push Aaron hard enough to hurt anybody, but did you know that even if you cause him to be embarrassed by pushing him into someone, like the principal, you would still have to pay him for the embarrassment he suffered?"

Did You Know...

What is the definition of "dozing off"? When someone is asleep, but not completely asleep, awake but not totally awake, and if people call to him he can answer but can't reason.
